

GRANTED A DIVORCE

Mrs. W. H. Sharkey Given a Legal Separation.

HER HUSBAND IS INSANE

DECREE ORDERED ENTERED BY JUDGE HILES.

Defendant Once Imagined Himself the Adverser of Liberty and Attempted to Enlighten the World—Glen Miller Loses a Suit in Judge Cherry's Court.

Judge Hiles yesterday granted Mrs. Mamie Sharkey an absolute divorce from her husband, W. H. Sharkey. The ground alleged in the complaint was failure to support. Mrs. Sharkey, when placed on the stand, testified that the marriage occurred Nov. 20, 1927.

She said that for more than a year her husband had contributed nothing whatever toward providing for her. In addition, she said he had a habit of drinking which periodically overcame him. Mrs. Sharkey testified that on the same line, and the court ordered that a decree be entered.

Sharkey is at present confined in the insane asylum at Provo. He was sent there several months ago. A few days prior to his commitment Sharkey took it into his head that he was "liberty enlightening the world." Accordingly he took a lamp and a bottle of kerosene and scolded the residents of State street near the Knifeshed.

Judge Cherry's Decision in Suit of McMillan Against Miller.

In the case of B. A. McMillan against Glen Miller and others, Judge Cherry yesterday handed down a decision finding for the plaintiff. The suit was brought to oust the officers of the Alma Gold Mining company on the ground that they were fraudulently elected, in that Deputy United States Marshal Smith was allowed to vote some stock that had been canceled and released.

Judge Cherry held that this stock should be returned to the plaintiff, and that the defendant should be permitted to vote it. Testimony in the case was taken on both sides some time ago, and the court has since had the matter under advisement.

It was shown that the estate is valued at less than $300 and that the funeral expenses had been paid out of the estate. The court means. The order for distribution was ordered entered.

To Quiet Title.

Daniel Turngren yesterday filed suit against S. B. Miller, Truth Miller and Salt Lake City to quiet the title to a lot on Eighth South street, between Second and Third West streets. The plaintiff claims that he has owned the property ever since 1885. He says the defendants, S. B. and Truth Miller, are claiming it by adverse possession. He claims that the tax sale under which the property was conveyed is illegal and that the title should be quieted in the plaintiff.

HEARD AND SEEN IN TIMMONY'S LAKE

Jailer Kimball will, on Tuesday evening, make requisition to the city council for twenty umbrellas for use in the court room.

The court has ordered a full length meerkat, about array with the old style velvet mantle and frock.

The clerk is laying in a stock of gaiter pants and a series of rubber boots for use of witnesses.

A downtown clothing store has offered a reduced rate on suits for the benefit of police court reporters.

Reference has been made to the condition of the court room ceiling, a movement is now on foot to install waterproof decks.

The need of two dozen anchors for use in Judge Timmony's court room is being seriously considered by the rain and hail committee of the city council. Hils will be called for in the near future.

Chief Hilton has received numerous catalogues, advertising a number of life-preservers, to be used by policemen appearing in Timmony's court.

It is understood that next year's code of essentials to becoming a policeman will contain a clause providing that all applicants must present diplomas from a swimming school.

James Crawford was the first to swim in yesterday. Jim might have sworn the night previous, but not in such dry water as that into which he now plunged.

As Dieth said, "Swimming and swimming alone from a Salt Lake City councilman" was the charge which Jim described.

"Also charged with being drunk unlawfully," said the clerk, spitting out a lump of rain water.

"Guilty," I guess," said Jim.

FIGURES PREPARED BY REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

Albert Reiser Who Aspires to Auditorship, Gets Up Statement of Expense For Street Sprinkling in 1939, Showing a Notable Decrease in Cost—Credit Due Patrick.

In view of the charges of extravagance on the part of the Democratic city council made by the Himmates in their platform, some figures on the street sprinkling department will be interesting. Strangely enough, these figures were prepared by Albert S. Reiser, chief clerk in the waterworks office and candidate for auditor on the Republican ticket. It is, therefore, reasonably fair to presume that the picture is not any more roseate in hue than the actual conditions.

Candidate Reiser's Figures.

At the request of Councilman Patrick, who may be called the "father of the city sprinkling cart," Mr. Reiser prepared a schedule showing what the sprinkling cost in 1939 and what it cost in 1938. The season is now practically over. In fact, because of the rains of the past few days, it is almost unlikely that any more sprinkling will be necessary for this year.

According to Mr. Reiser's figures, it cost $22,264.80 to sprinkle the city in 1938. This year it has cost only $14,423.80. The saving, it will be seen, is nearly $8,000, or, in exact figures, it is $7,841.00. This isn't half the story.

Mr. Reiser, in a little footnote to his schedule, says: "There are 123 blocks now being sprinkled in addition to those which were sprinkled in 1938. The work was done at the rate paid Hertz & Preece in 1938 ($1.06 per block per week), would be $12.88 per week, or $337.50 per month."

Nearly Pays For Carts.

The saving for the season of 1939 alone is almost enough to pay the cost of the city's sprinkling carts. In addition, the money has been distributed among the workmen of Salt Lake. The men who have taken on the job of sprinkling have been given a bonus of $1.00 each.

CAPT. MILLS IN GOOD HEALTH

ALLEGED BAD SANITARY CONDITIONS AT County Jail—Statement From Captain Mills.

The Boise Statesman published an article in its issue of yesterday—presumably authorized by an Idahoan who has visited Mills—saying that the sanitary conditions of the county jail at Salt Lake were such that Mills is losing his health at a rate that will witness his death before trial.

Of course, the statement is absurd. No one who has visited the county jail since it has been under the supervision of Captain Mills can truly make such an assertion. It is disproven by the prisoner himself, who was seen last night.

It is also disproven by the fact that Mills is in good health, and his demeanor does not conceal the fact that he is working greatly over the trouble he is in. He gave the reporter the following statement:

"In answer to your inquiry about sanitary conditions in my cell, I desire to say that it seems to me that they are as good as any to be expected in a place of this kind. I have experienced no inconvenience from unsanitary conditions, and I have no complaints to make and have made none."

Mills was visited by Governor Steunenberg and Ben Rich of Idaho during the summer. Mills' health, he said, and has, in fact, had quite a number of distinguished callers. T. Worth Bowen, a mining engineer from Boston, and Edward C. Jones, of the governor's engineering department at Cheyenne, talked with the prisoner Friday.

Mills' visitors yesterday included Gov. Steunenberg, who was in the city on his way to Salt Lake, and the sisters from St. Mary's academy, where the Mills children are living. During these visits the subject of the murder is always avoided by Mills. He resolves his visitor with outstretched hand and tries not to betray any emotion at seeing friendly faces.

Telegraphing to Mars.

The idea that we may possibly be able sometime to communicate with the planet Mars is a perfectly sound one. Those who laugh at it merely emphasize their lack of knowledge of the march of progress. Years ago man with his tiny telescope gazed across a stream a hundred yards wide. He could communicate with his fellow men only so far as his voice would reach. He could not communicate with the stars.

But we have progressed. Steam crosses the ocean, electricity communicates across the continent, and Hottel's Stomach Bitters has proved a boon to humanity. It strikes at the root of almost all sicknesses—the stomach, and cures indigestion, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia. A private revenue stamp should cover the neck of the bottle.
